

Private school teachers.

You are teaching at a local private school and you think this is the best school concept. Eventhough, you have to pay for the school, you still think the educational system is way better.

Find arguments that support your claim. Gather them and prepare for a discussion. Each one has to be prepared to be randomly picked.

Consider...

- What do you want?
- How can you justify your interests?
- How can you justify negelcting others' interests?
- How does your background information support your arguments?

Need help?

Scan the QR CODE!

Headmaster of a comprehensive school

You comprehensive school does not differentiate between different levels of education and in your opinion that is how the best results are achieved. You think that also the parents of future students should understand that!

Find arguments that support your claim. Gather them and prepare for a discussion. Each one has to be prepared to be randomly picked.

Consider...

- What do you want?
- How can you justify your interests?
- How can you justify neglecting others' interests?
- How does your background information support your arguments?

Need help?

Scan the QR CODE!

Students at a coeducational school

All of your friends go to a boys or girls only school, but you love the concept of having all genders in one class together. Some might have trouble with that, but you don't!

Find arguments that support your claim. Gather them and prepare for a discussion. Each one has to be prepared to be randomly picked.

Consider...

- What do you want?
- How can you justify your interests?
- How can you justify neglecting others' interests?
- How does your background information support your arguments?

Need help?

Scan the QR CODE!

Discussion leader

You are the host that leads the talkshow. Your task is to introduce the topic and provide the statement that is the starting point of the discussion. During the discussion you need to give the word to the different parties. Try and make the amount of their speaking time as equal as possible. Also, if the conversation gets too calm too quickly, address people/parties directly and ask them to give their opinions. Prepare for the discussion by noting down useful phrases for the moderation. Also, prepare the short introduction and questions on the topic that you can ask if needed.

Keep in mind: Do ask provocatively! For your preparation consider...

- What do the different parties want?
- How can they justify their interests?
- How can they justify neglecting others' interests?
- How does their background information support their arguments?